

Ireland's environment Who does what?

The Environmental Protection Agency

The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) protects the environment for everyone in the country. We regulate and police activities that might otherwise cause pollution.

We ensure there is solid information on environmental trends so that necessary actions are taken.

Our priorities are protecting the Irish environment and ensuring that development is sustainable. We employ 290 people who work in ten locations throughout the country.

There are many organisations working to protect and improve Ireland's environment. The Environmental Protection Agency's guide explains who does what and who to contact about your environmental queries.
