Circular Business Model: Waste Reduction, Upcycling, and Circular Practices at Events

Set up in 2017, Native Events aims to transition the Irish creative and cultural sector to a more sustainable, just, and circular model. Native Events operates across three pillars to effect change. The organisation works on environmental consultancy, carbon footprint reporting, climate action policy and strategy, and training and upskilling for the sector. They also produce environmentally-conscious events - festivals, conferences and immersive experiences – showcasing an alternative approach to large-scale gatherings.

The organisation sources salvaged, reused upcycled furniture and decor, temporary solar power, and reusable serveware and branding to provide a comprehensive waste reduction strategy. All to help events and the wider creative industries to become more circular, sustainable and regenerative by design.

Native Events featured as a 'Local Circular Solutions' organisation at the EPA Circular Economy Conference in 2023
